A father, his daughter, their story.
Every parent has to let go of his child one day.

35 SHOTS OF RUM
A film by Claire Denis
Lionel, widowed, has raised his daughter, Josephine, on his own. Now their life together began to resemble that of a couple. They look after each other as if time was endless.

Then comes the separation.

All that love, all that effort in order to rise to the task, to achieve this equilibrium, but now you’re leaving me to live your own life, says the father to himself.

Allow me, please, allow me to breathe easy a little longer at your side, thinks the daughter.

The father: I believe my future withered as you grew. And I held firm, I did my best.

The daughter: Will I be loved as much as you love me?

A few days ago somebody said to me:

“Franz Fanon, that’s so outdated!”

And it’s certainly old. But as for the rest, amidst this combination of fear and anger that keeps me alive and drives me, I believe this is a film about love.
