SYNOPSIS

Stanislas Graff is a man of power. He is in full control of his multinational company and his family life. His public fame and wealth make him a perfect target for a kidnapping. A very high ransom is requested against his liberation but the police and the family play against each other. Graff, whose secret life gets exposed to the media, is not the man he pretended to be. Upon his return from 60 gruelling days in captivity, he has to face the resentment of his loved ones who have discovered his true nature through the media.