THE TOGETHER PROJECT
Samir, a tall, lanky, 40-something crane operator from Montreuil, in the outskirts of Paris, falls head over heels in love with Agathe. He discovers she is a swimming instructor at the local swimming pool, and, for lack of a better plan, he decides to enlist as her student…although he can swim perfectly. But his lie only lasts for 3 lessons, and Agathe hates liars. The truth surfaces. Agathe is furious. The end?
Not quite! Agathe goes to Iceland on a business trip, putting an ocean between her and Samir. But it is without reckoning with his feelings and his stubbornness...
In the beginning of the writing, there was the idea that the film was to carry us from a man-made water world (the swimming pool of Montreuil, a suburb of Paris) to a wild water world (the Icelandic hot springs), the passing from the man-made to the wild underlining the passing of our two heroes to the state of being in love. Whilst working with my scriptwriter, Jean Luc Gaget, we became completely crazy about DEEP END, the film by Jerzy Skolimowski (1970). That film really triggered it all. The film’s setting is in a swimming pool and deals with the agitation one might feel in such “water” places. It’s that very precise kind of agitation we wanted to explore here, because a swimming pool is a very peculiar place, a timeless place, which brings together the most diverse people with motives that are sometimes enigmatic. Libidinal moistness, penetrating humidity, slippery floors, unspeakable torpor, unchanging rituals – swimming pools have a strange effect on certain people. We come there mainly to swim, a widely spread idea, but we also bump into intentions less easier to admit there. A swimming pool is a highly democratic space because the signs of belonging, whether they are social or religious, have disappeared beneath the skin-tight swimsuits. It’s nonetheless a space in which battles for power are led openly, and in which one can hear the echo of the modern world. By following our two characters and their madly in love quest, we also wanted to draw the portrait of a strange, well known and often funny tribe, that of the swimming instructors.

The aim was to blend the burlesque and the romantic comedy, creating a harmony between these two “sources” of inspiration, which are usually contradictory and sometimes dissonant. Of course, as in cooking (and in love), it’s all about dosage. Comedy is a long road filled with doubts because of the gap of one or two years between the moment when we write the scene and the moment when the audience in the theatre react, or not, to this scene shot some time back. This experience, without making it an absolute rule, has enabled me to judge more easily a good balance between realism, comedy, burlesque and emotion.

Finally, THE TOGETHER PROJECT is the desire deep inside of me to find again the energy which is so typical to Iceland, the country where I come from, and to place all these characters in wide-open spaces, make them confront the elements, by making them live a story which is as funny as it is touching.

The film is part of the same desire as that of my two previous comedies (BACK SOON in 2008 and QUEEN OF MONTREUIL in 2012), that is to say to lead actors and “non actors”, French and Icelandic, and even Palestinian, into adventures a little bit crazy, starting with a well-built script leaving me room for the real and for the improvised.

Sólveig ANSPACH
He chases me all the way to Iceland, he’s crazy! All this for me!

“A little guy can do great things… especially if it’s a woman.”
Florence Loiret Caille starred in several theater plays under the guidance of directors such as Nicolas Klotz, Xavier Durringer, Bruno Bayen and Anne Bourgeois. She has also appeared in numerous feature films, as well as television films and series.

PHILIPPE REBBOT

Actor and screenwriter, Philippe Rebbot starred notably in WELCOME TO ARGENTINA by Edouard Deluc, with Nicolas Duvauchelle. He appeared in secondary roles in many films, such as LULU IN THE NUDE by Sólveig Anspach, ONE OF A KIND by François Dupeyron, FOOL CIRCLE by Vincent Mariette or HIPPOCRATES by Thomas Litti. More recently, he appeared in 21 NIGHTS WITH PATTIE by Arnaud and Jean-Pierre Larrieu, THE FIRST THE LAST by Bouli Lanners, and in THE WHITE KNIGHTS by Joachim Lafosse. He will soon appear next to Karin Viard in A BUN IN THE OVEN by Nadège Loiseau.

“'What I did is unforgivable. Especially since I was trying to impress two poor girls who are not ugly, but not that hot either.'”

ESTÉBAN

Estéban begins his cinematographic career in 2012. He appears in THE RENDEZVOUS OF DEJA VU by Antonin Peretjatko. Also known as David Boring, Estéban is the leader of the band Naive New Beaters, with which he released two albums (Wallace in 2009 and La Onda in 2012), accompanied by international tours. For the release of La Onda the band defined its music as “rapped pop with swaying feelings”. In 2015, Estéban directs the medium-length film YO! PEKIN, with his colleagues from Naive New Beaters.
After training at the National Theater in Strasbourg, Olivia Côte makes her first appearance in television, notably as the author and actress for the short series VOUSS LES FEMMES. For the last ten years, she alternates between cinema, theatre and television. We saw her in BRIGHT DAYS AHEAD by Marion Vernoux, ENSEMBLE C’EST TROP by Léa Fazer, ELLE L’ADORE by Jeanne Herry or more recently in NEWS FROM PLANET MARS by Dominik Moll. On the TV-screen, she appears in the series DIX POUR CENT and PEPLUM.

“...You have a very nice swimsuit, those little palm trees are sweet...”

Didda Jónsdóttir is an Icelandic poet and actress. She is also a singer in the rock band Minä Rakastan Sinua. She appeared in four feature films by Sólveig Anspach. She begins with STORMY WEATHER, together with her co-star Élodie Bouchez, and reunites with Sólveig Anspach for her trilogy BACK SOON, QUEEN OF MONTREUIL and THE TOGETHER PROJECT.

“...She is a counselor at the Municipality, but only every second day. One day, she’s the boss, and the next day it’s me and she’s under my authority...”
JEAN-LUC GAGET

Very young, he starts to work as assistant director. Simultaneously, he directs his first shorts-movies and creates the production company Cinq et cinq films, with Laurent Bénégui. He then becomes an editor, while he continues to shoot his own shorts and starts his screenwriter career. Cinq et cinq films becomes Magouric, and produces dozens of short and feature films between 1993 and 2005. He contributes as chief editor to several films, but also occasionally as actor or even as executive producer (MILLE BORNES by Alain Beigel).

In 2000, he directs his first feature film, I KILLED CLEMENCE ACERA which is released in April 2001.

From 2004 onwards, he dedicates himself mostly to his work as a writer of scripts and dialogues. He writes for cinema and television, principally for Lucas Belvaux, Pascal Chaumeil, Laurent Bénégui, Agnès Obadia, Edwin Baily, Fabien Onenente, Olivier Guignard, Alain Beigel, Sophie Laloy, Catherine Klein, Marion Sarraut, Charles Najman, Blandine Lenoir, Eric Woreth, Grégoire Sivan, Marc Angelo, Claude Mourieras, Jean-Teddy Filipe and for Sólveig Anspach, with whom he collaborates on five films.

SÓLVEIG ANSPACH

Sólveig Anspach was born in 1960 in Vestmannaeyjar, Iceland, to an American father and an Icelandic mother.

In 1998, she directs her first feature film HAUT LES COEURS!, selected and awarded in many festivals and for which Karin Viard wins the Cesar Award for Best Actress.

Her American-Icelandic origins shine through in all of her films and particularly in her trilogy ending with THE TOGETHER PROJECT, in which we are reunited with the characters from BACK SOON and QUEEN OF MONTREUIL.

Sólveig Anspach shot the French part of THE TOGETHER PROJECT in October 2014 and the Icelandic part in May and June 2015. She had managed to edit two-thirds of the film when she passed away, on August 7th 2015.

Her editor Anne Riégel, her screenwriter Jean-Luc Gaget, her composer Martin Wheeler, her sound engineer and mixer Jean Mallet and her producer Patrick Sobelman collectively finished the editing and completed the film in December 2015.
